

2026 PSC Democratic Candidates

Downballot Update: Peter Hubbard - Public Service Commission, District 3

Let's run it back! Democratic PSC Commissioner Peter Hubbard is BACK on the ballot this year after winning a special 1-year term in a landslide last year. Peter has been fighting alongside Commissioner Alicia Johnson to lower Georgians' bills - but he needs us to finish the job and re-elect him alongside a Democratic PSC majority this year.

Since Peter took office, he's demanded an independent audit of Georgia Power's profit margin, published a data center cost analysis that uncovered millions in costs that were being pushed on to consumers, and testified in front of the state legislature on the need for legislation to protect consumers. This year, Peter is running for a full 6-year term to finish the job.

Peter is running against Fitz Johnson, the same rate-hiking Republican commissioner he defeated last year. Johnson apparently didn't get the message that Georgians didn't approve of him voting to allow six rate hikes in two years that added over \$500 per year to the average power bill – so we'll send the message again at the polls this year. Time to run it back, Georgia Democrats!

Shelia Edwards - Public Service Commission, District 5

Let's flip the PSC! Shelia Edwards is running to be the Democratic majority-maker on the Public Service Commission.

Shelia is a community advocate, journalist, business owner, and the Democratic nominee for Georgia Public Service Commission, District 5. She is running to stop endless utility rate hikes, protect consumers, and hold monopoly utility companies accountable by putting "People Before Profits".

With more than 35 years of leadership experience in corporate America and at the local, state, and federal levels, Shelia has built a reputation as a results-driven public servant and advocate for Georgia families and businesses. Her career in government, communications, public policy, and community engagement has been defined by bringing people together, solving complex problems, and delivering meaningful results.
